Forrester Gallery –
Titokowaru's Dilemma

Friday 12th September until Sunday 30th November
New Zealand print-maker, Marion Maguire combines the bold silhouettes of Greek vases with the tonal graduations of colonial paintings to challenge simplistic readings of colonial history. Her work illustrates the impressive figure of Riwha Titokowaru (1823-1888) -Maori tohunga and leader from the Taranaki region.

Koreo Ko, Koreo Au

Saturday 20th September until Sunday 16th November
Moana Tipa (Ngai Tahu, Kati Mamoe, Ngati Kahungunu, Celt) pays tribute to her father Thomas Rangiora Tipa (1924-2014) and southern whakapapa Maori. Her work combines marks and lines of traditional crafts with celestial navigation to locate place and direction, transposing whakaaro Maori into a contemporary context.

Scotts Brewery Tour

In 1905, after a raucous heyday that saw Oamaru serve as the home to the largest number of brothels and taverns in the Southern Hemisphere, the local council voted in prohibition in an attempt to curb the town's bawdy reputation. Prohibition resulted in the closing of all the town's breweries, and even though it was repealed in 1962 until now there has been no beer brewed in town. Here is your chance to tour the brewery and sample the Nineteen 05 on arrival.
